

[illegible]

This image shows a blank white page. A prominent, thick black vertical bar runs along the entire left edge of the frame. The rest of the page is completely white and contains no other visual information or text.

down, etc., Building Materials, etc.
N. W. RAYN—At Newman, Bluff Wood.
HARRIS—At Joe and Devin—At their Friends Store, at 19, Leach.
MORT AND CO.—At their Wood Warehouse, at 13, Leach; at
 S. W. Wood, Birmingham.
W. W. RAYN—At their Friends Store, Leach.
J. BRIDGER—At his Store, at 18, Leach; at S. W. Wood, Birmingham.
DUNN AND LISTER—At their Room, at 11, Chardonnay.
WELLS AND SMITH—At Black Dove Train, at 12, Hill, and, at Newport Railway Station, at 1, Bluff Wood.
 _____
 We are requested to call attention to the following names, not having been previously published.

from Liverpool Road to <sup>10</sup>Wilton-street, be formed <sup>11</sup>—

the contention by the counsel for the defendants that "to coerce" was not intended to apply to peaceable and orderly watching and persuasion, but was directed against disorderly conduct calculated to produce fear or intimidation; if he was in a position to give any information to the House whether the same contended for was in accordance with the intention of Parliament as expressed by the framers of the Act; whether his attention had been called to the charge of the recorder of London to the grand jury, who laid down the law accordingly, and also to the remarks of the learned judge, who, in passing sentence, expressed his "feeling that the defendants did not show the proper respect to the court."

ships unit was "absolutely one which was very, very doing that under the law as it existed they were only doing that which they had a right to do. There were difficulties in regard to the law on the matter, and they might have acted under such a supposition as he had indicated." Whether, under all the circumstances, as there was no appeal, the learned Judge declining to reverse the case, he would advise the extension of the prerogative of pardon to the defendants; and whether the Government would in the promised him to amend the law, seek to make clearer the meaning of the legislation. In reply, the guerist was informed that the attention of the Home Secretary had been drawn to the case referred to. It did not appear from the usual Parliamentary record that it was the intention that peaceable persuasion was to be made punishable. The meaning of the Act had, however, been explained to the grand jury by the Recorder in his charge, and to the jury who tried the case by Baron Clesaby. Nevertheless, the grand jury found a true bill against the prisoners, and the other jury returned a verdict of guilty against them, and in the latter verdict Baron Clesaby expressly concurred. Under these circumstances it would appear that the acts of the prisoners amounted to something more than peaceable persuasion. The Secretary of State saw no reason for differing with the opinions expressed by the students and by the learned judge, and otherwise he did not intend to interfere in the case. This reply will tend to aggravate the feelings of irritation entertained by the men, who maintain that the principle of peaceable persuasion was not departed from. The subject is, however, to come under the notice of Parliament after the holidays, but it is doubtful whether anything will be done to meet the wishes of the unionists, the general impression being that too many concessions have been made already.

In the forthcoming demonstrations and agitation of the trades-unionists, the agricultural labourers are likely, notwithstanding the exhortations of their best advisers, to take a prominent part. They have, on the whole, received very little assistance, except in the shape of words, from the trades-unions, and have gained still less by their alliance with the representatives of Unionism, who have always advised them to emigrate to the colonies rather than migrate to the manufacturing districts. Many people suppose that because nothing is heard of the labourers' movement, it is at an end. Nothing of the kind. The organization of the labourers is daily becoming more extended and perfect,—a fact of which the farmers and landowners seem to be fully aware, judging by the increasing use made of steam and other labour-saving appliances in agricultural operations. Never was mechanical ingenuity more active than at the present time in securing new or improved forms of mechanical farm assistance, for the leading farmers appear to have made up their minds to meet future strikes on the part of their men, not by the importations of fresh labour, but by the aid of steam machinery. Curiously enough, the labourers do not appear in the least alarmed. They have discovered that the increased use of machinery really means higher wages to skilled workmen, and they believe that it will end in the labourer being treated less as a mere tool and more as a man. Perhaps they are not far wrong.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey have left the Agricultural Hall, which is now being fitted up in anticipation of the forthcoming horse show, and have taken up their quarters at the magnificent Opera House, in the Haymarket. The excitement occasioned by their preaching has become considerably diminished, but in one respect they have left behind them a permanent impression in the shape of improved pulpit oratory in almost every part of the metropolis. It has been suddenly discovered that the majority of London ministers are far better preachers than Messrs. Moody and Banksy, only that they never made the best use of their talents. One or two papers, which seek to gain a circulation by means of scurrilous articles, have made all kinds of imputations on the character and disinterestedness of Mr. Moody, but without effect. His hearers will failed to establish the accuracy of their charges. It is noticeable that at most of the May Meetings, the Agricultural Hall services have been alluded to in terms of the highest commendation, and that it has been proposed to form a kind of revival propaganda, consisting of ministers of all denominations, for the purpose of holding special revival services in every part of the kingdom. This looks like the beginning of a new crusade.

JOHN PLUMMER.

THE REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE says a London paper comments upon the refusal of the Bishop of London to allow Mr. Fremantle to preach in the City Temple, which he thinks "is enough to set all Christendom in a roar of laughter." "Such scenes," adds Mr. Talmage, "will help on the day of disroachment from the State. Dr. Parker appropriately read on the disappointing conceals the Psalm on brotherly love, 'It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the board.' Let somebody get a whole tank of that precious ointment, and dip the Bishop of London into it!"

TWO SONGS ON ONE TRY.—The Spectator writes:—"Mr. Sackey's main power is in his solo-singing, which is full of sweetness and genuine tenderness of tone. On Tuesday night, his singing of the hymn, Jesus, My Lord and God, was a masterpiece."

at Foster Hall, of that on "The Last Supper," especially the feeling with which he sang, "Out in the desert He heard its cry, sick and helpless and ready to die," were remarkable, and distinguished by a delicacy and severity of expression that could hardly be too much admired." The Saturday Review says, of the same performance:—"The quality of Mr. Sankey's voice and his style of singing are questions of taste on which there will be great differences of opinion. The cap be no doubt, however, that his set is of a tickly kind, and aims at producing effect by sudden alternations between high and low. His favourite note is one in the back of the throat, with which he pours forth a prolonged and hollow O ! O ! O ! something between a howl and a wail, which makes one think of a melodious cormorant crying his cabbage. Whether it is pure art or not, it appears to be agreeable to the majority of the audience.

AN INCONGRUITY.—Dick Larybone was the owner of a large dog, which cost as much to keep as two pigs; and the dog was worse than useless, and greatly annoyed Dick's wife. "Plague take the dog," cried she. "Mr. Larybone, I wish you would sell him, or do something or other with him. I wonder you keep such a useless animal." "Well, well, my dear," said Dick, "say no more about it. I will get rid of him one of these days." This was intended as a mere get-off on the part of Dick; but as his wife kept daily dinnin' in his ears about the dog, he was at last compelled to take action in the matter. "Well, wife," said he one day, "I've said 'fover.' 'Have you, indeed?' she cried. "I am dreadful glad of it. 'How much did you sell him for?' "Five pounds." "Five pounds! What five pounds for one dog! How glad I am. But where's the money, my love!"

FROM CASTLEBURY TO ROME.—The Graphic says: "When a man quits the communion of the Church of England and joins that of the Church of Rome, it is usually regarded both by those who approve and those who disapprove of the change as a serious step, not to be taken in a hurry. The fact that the intended convert is a clergyman, rather than a layman, detracts from the gravity of the matter, and would for the future be more severely than ecclesiastics of the Anglican Church who have made up their minds to "go over to Rome" should signify their determination to their superior officers <sup>at</sup> some time in advance, so that the change may cause as little inconvenience as possible to the flock which was lately under their care. Mr. G. P. (Adolphus) Osborne, according to his own showing, adopted a far less judicious course.

Having decided to "go over to Rome" on a Tuesday, he telegraphs to the previous Friday to a gentleman to take his duty on the intervening Sunday. The gentleman fails to come, and so there was no merrymaking service, though assistance was procured for the evening. Altogether, there is something rather comic about the whole business. One is reminded of the old nursery ditty, "Married a wife on Sunday, Brought her home on Monday." See Mr. Osborn's was pleasant as an Anglican on the Friday, on the Tuesday following he was a Romanist, and on the Sunday that came between he was, we presume, like Mahomet's coffin, suspended between earth and heaven, for if on that day he had been in intention, although not in deed, a true Romanist, he ought not have crumpled himself about providing a heretic congregation with a heretic minister.

ews-page4092109

of Mr. STEPHEN

RELIGIOUS SERVICE
will be held commencing at 8.30 p.m.
Several ministers will deliver addresses.
Bible exposition will be provided for 6000.
On MONDAY EVENING, January 8, Grand (Yong)
Hall, 100, Queen St. East, will be held a concert of the following programme:
The entire proceeds of the evening will help part of the religious work being carried on for several days.
The programme is as follows:
1. N. J. MACKENNIE, Solo, Tenor.
2. W. MADAYNE, Chorus.
3. JAMES FARWELL, Solo, Soprano.
Admission Free.—S.H.17

J. R. McDonough
H. A. Karnshaw

12 KVENING. Committee Meeting after. T. Howe.
13 1 CO. 1st REGT. - Supplies (1st May) and Subscription, Raymondland Morgan Farms, SATUR-DAY, 1st; and Trophies, Saturday, 10th July.
 1st CO. 1st REGT. - Supplies. Captain.
5 CO. 1st REGT. - Special DRILL postponed
 from Monday on WEDNESDAY, Victoria Park.
 7.30. Every member particularly requested to attend.
 WILLIAM JOHNSTON, Captain.
7 COMPANY - PARADE at Hyde Park, 1st June.
 Full Muster, with beverages. W. Winton, Captain.
8 VOLUNTEER LAND ORDNANCE - Mounted and Field
 at Borden, Mills and Oxted; 1st June.
 J. A. Smith, Captain.
 1st June.

Volunteer LAND ORDERS. One Wanted in Lay.

[illegible]

Thames Baker, opposite Cathedral.

WANTED, a BOY, to mind cows, who can milk.
 1. Misses Edgewood Road, Westchester.

WANTED, a BOY, to make himself generally useful.
 1. Cowper Wall Hall, Westchester.

WANTED, a strong LAD, to deliver mail. W.
 1. McManus, Rockingham Street, near Ballinacorney.

WANTED, a respectable LAD: Apply The Hotel,
 1. Marine Street.

WANTED, a useful BOY, to assist in the painting
 1. of premises. Apply, 611a Grand Canal, Dublin.

WANTED, a strong YOUNG MAN, who can saw
 1. and Robert Burns Road, Duncannon and Ballymore.

Apply at the City and County Building, Room 100, at the corner of and Balboa streets.

AGE comfortably-furnished BND and SITTING ROOM, 10, balcony. Bedrooms, 4. To Hyatt-st. 100 ft. from beach. Call 2-1000.

AGE Front BEDROOM, suitable for a gentleman's office, with board. 424, Overland, at Myerbrook.

AGE PRIVATE BOARD and RESIDENCE, at moderate rates. 11, Charlotte-place, Clifton Hill.

AGE PRIVATE Board and Bedrooms. Two vacancies. 100, Victoria-terrace. Terms moderate. 251, Clifton-gate-st.

AGE PRIVATE FAMILIAL and comfortable for gentlemen. Boarders may share the same through the Clifton Family Society, 11, Clifton-gate-st. See page 2.

NT, four unfurnished ROOMS, bath and kitchen
No. 127, Prince street. (March 21)

diverse a material, if broken.
 drivers, Dunlap, and Macgregor, in each direction.
 and drivers in the center and rearly payment by order of Fidelity Guaranty.
 of BIRNEY and FRANKS cannot be inserted normal value together with the name and address of the person to whom the same are addressed.
 of MARRIOTT cannot be inserted unless written by the following Minister of Agriculture, the President of the United States, Secretary of and Minister of Agriculture having been sent to the
 the purpose of securing respectful notice.

[illegible]

1

<http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-page144417>